

For Immediate Release

March 2, 2023

Futuro Health CEO Van Ton-Quinlivan Named to Top 50 Women Leaders of San Francisco

(SACRAMENTO, Calif.) -- Van Ton-Quinlivan, CEO of Futuro Health, has been named to the list of the Top 50 Women Leaders in San Francisco for 2023. Ton-Quinlivan joins this year's roster of esteemed women executives and professionals from diverse sectors such as healthcare, technology, banking, and the environment, who have demonstrated exceptional leadership in their respective fields.

San Francisco has a high proportion of successful women, according to Women We Admire, an organization dedicated to recognizing the noteworthy accomplishments of women executives and leaders, and curator of the annual Top 50 Women Leaders list.

Ton-Quinlivan's distinguished career spans the public, private and nonprofit sectors. Formerly Executive Vice Chancellor of the California Community Colleges, Ton-Quinlivan currently serves as the CEO of Futuro Health, whose nonprofit mission is to improve the health and wealth of communities by growing the largest network of allied healthcare workers in the nation. She is an appointee of Governor Newsom to the Health Workforce Education and Training Council responsible for coordinating California's health workforce education and training to meet the state's needs.

Ton-Quinlivan was named a White House Champion of Change under the Obama administration in recognition of her notable career in industry, education, and service as a community leader. She serves on the boards of the National Student Clearinghouse and Silicon Valley Community Foundation and is a member of the International Women's Forum. In addition to her leadership roles, Ton-Quinlivan is a podcast host and author of best-seller book, WorkforceRx: Inclusive and Agile Strategies for Employers, Educators and Workers During Unsettled Times.

Ton-Quinlivan is joined on the Top 50 Women Leaders list by other accomplished leaders from the the Bay Area, including Natasha Sunderji, Global Health Lead for Accenture's social impact practice; Radhika Giri, Senior Vice President of Emerging Business for SiriusXM; Wendy Anderson, Senior Vice President of Federal and National Security for Palantir; and Hannah Elsagr, Vice President of Corporate Development, Direct Investing and M&A at Adobe.

#