

Futuro Health is offering the opportunity for qualified applicants* to enroll, tuition-free, in one of two care coordinator programs: Care Coordinator: Behavioral Health Populations and Care Coordinator: Chronically Ill Populations.

About Care Coordinators

A care coordinator, also known as a patient care coordinator, patient navigator, or resident care coordinator, helps patients through the complex elements of the behavioral healthcare system. If you are an excellent communicator, a good listener, and willing to empathize with your patient, this growing allied healthcare field is for you.

Typical duties may include:

- Patient screening and scheduling.
- Communicating with the patient and care team.
- Meeting with patients and family members to inform and educate them on the patient's condition and plan of care.
- Coordinating with insurance carriers.
- Reviewing medication inventory and processing pharmacy orders.
- Performing patient case management tasks.
- Locating and providing community resources to patients and their family members.

Fast Facts about the Futuro Health Program:

- Employment for this occupation is projected to grow 13 percent from 2018 to 2028.
- The annual median range for care coordinators varies from $35,060 to $44,020, depending on your area of specialty.
- Each program is offered online and takes between 6-12 months to complete.

Earning a certificate as a care coordinator is a great way to advance your career. The certificate also provides flexible upskilling opportunities for existing credentialed healthcare workers.

Minimum Qualifications

- Have 3+ years of experience in your current/recent health role and a valid healthcare license or credential.
 - Be a California resident.
 - Have no felony conviction on record.
- Be willing to commit 3-4 hours per day (estimated at 20+ hours per week) of study time.
