

Futuro Health CEO Van Ton-Quinlivan Named to Top 50 Women Leaders in Healthcare

(SACRAMENTO, Calif.) – Van Ton-Quinlivan, CEO of Futuro Health, has been named among the Top 50 Women Leaders in Healthcare for 2024.

Curated by Women We Admire, an organization comprised of the most accomplished women executives and leaders across the U.S. and Canada, the Top 50 list recognizes healthcare leaders for their service to the health and wellness of local communities and people across the world that embody tolerance, fairness, and open-mindedness.

“The women leaders in healthcare we honor have accomplished truly astounding feats in the U.S. healthcare system and beyond to ensure that everyone has access to life-saving treatments and quality preventative care and that healthcare facilities have the technology, staff, and resources they need to thrive,” stated the list’s publisher.

Ton-Quinlivan's distinguished career spans the public, private and nonprofit sectors. Formerly Executive Vice Chancellor of the California Community Colleges, Ton-Quinlivan currently serves as the CEO of Futuro Health, whose nonprofit mission is to improve the health and wealth of communities by growing the largest network of allied healthcare workers in the nation. Futuro Health is addressing the nation’s critical shortage in allied healthcare workers and has shared its best practices at forums of the World Health Organization (WHO), National Governors Association (NGA) and the Center for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS).

Ton-Quinlivan is chairperson and an appointee of Governor Newsom to the Health Workforce Education and Training Council responsible for coordinating California’s health workforce education and training to meet the state’s needs, with an emphasis on health equity and inclusive workforce participation. Ton-Quinlivan was named a White House Champion of Change under the Obama administration in recognition of her notable career in industry, education, and service as a community leader. She serves on the boards of the National Student Clearinghouse and Silicon Valley Community Foundation and is a member of the International Women’s Forum. In addition to her leadership roles, Ton-Quinlivan is a podcast host and author of best-seller book, WorkforceRx: Inclusive and Agile Strategies for Employers, Educators and Workers During Unsettled Times.

Ton-Quinlivan is joined on the Top 50 Women Leaders in Healthcare list by other accomplished individuals, including Elissa Charbonneau, Chief Medical Officer at Encompass Health; Ezelele Payne, Vice President at Atrium Health; and Elizabeth Ransom, Chief Medical Officer at Providence Health.
